PHASE I

From the treetops, the pinnacle of the jungle, Hope opens to a double-height terrace with an inverted pyramid on the ceiling covered in mirrors, which erase the boundaries and bring the jungle to the sky. Hanging from the pyramid, a bronze seed serves as a reminder of origin and principle, a terrace that, fully open, connects the interior with the exterior. The pool on the terrace invites relaxation in a spacious body of water.

The jungle enters Hope; upon entering your space, the canopy of a tree welcomes you, emerging from the staircase that descends to the private space of the bedrooms.

Upon reaching the bottom, a play of light, curtains, and nature constructs the antechamber to the private spaces. An abstraction of nature turned contemporary expression has been commissioned to Alexis Mata, with which this space is crowned.

The bedrooms provide each inhabitant with space for relaxation, intimacy, and rest. The master bedroom, of ample dimensions, provides a place to cool off in the private pool on its terrace, shower surrounded by greenery, sit in its comfortable lounge to read something, or simply lie down and contemplate the movement of the trees.
